A Whole New Game

Once upon a time, at-home productions were all about becoming more cost efficient, especially when it came to smaller sporting events. But the current coronavirus crisis has greatly expanded the demand for at-home workflows and technologies. Experts in production discuss how their at-home production efforts are evolving and what they need in the future.

SPEAKERS:

Kyle Arrowsmith, MLB Network, Engineer
Curt Bose, MLB Network/NHL Network, Senior Manager, Studio Engineering
David Dukes, PGA TOUR Entertainment, Senior Director, Technical Operations
Greg Hopfe, PGA TOUR Entertainment, VP and Executive Producer
Alex Redfern, EVS, SVP, Solutions Architecture

Virtual Fan Activation — NFL Draft Audience

Contribution With LTN Global Live Video Cloud

While the coronavirus pandemic has resulted in putting all sports on hold, the 2020 NFL Draft gathered millions of viewers and was a resounding success. The broadcast required a massive production of a live show that involved a large number of fans interacting in real time. Nearly 500 fans took part in the NFL Draft from the comfort of their own homes by streaming their reactions shown live during the show. All of this was made possible through use of LTN Global's Live Video Cloud service.

PRESENTERS:

Joseph Hopkins, LTN Global, SVP, Business and Corporate Development
Kelly Kline, LTN Global, Director of Esports Sales
Matija Tonejc, LTN Global, VP Product, Control
